

I am very upset to learn that Sinclair Broadcasting is forcing all their stations to air a documentary that is derogatory to John Kerry just before the election.

There is an obligation that accompanies use of the public airways to serve the public interest. Who is responsible to see that this is done? In the interests of democratic and fair elections, the public deserves to have balanced programming. The consolidation of media ownership has allowed corporate interests to dominate the airways.

Please move toward more regulation so that we have more local programming and a better balance of viewpoints. Thank you.
